

GET STORM READY BEFORE SEVERE WEATHER ARRIVES

Storm season is upon us in eastern New Mexico, and now is a great time to prepare your home, your family, and your technology. With high winds, lightning, heavy rain, and unexpected power outages, a little planning today can go a long way in keeping everyone safe and connected.

Start by checking your emergency supplies. Keep flashlights, fresh batteries, bottled water, non-perishable food, and a basic first aid kit within easy reach. It's also a good idea to fully charge your cell phones, backup battery packs, and weather radios before storms roll in.

Don't forget about your home's technology. Protect your router, modem, TVs, and computers with surge protectors to guard against lightning strikes and power surges. If a major storm is expected, unplugging sensitive electronics can provide an extra layer of protection.

Take a few minutes to talk with your family about a storm plan, including where to take shelter and how to stay in touch if services are disrupted. Staying informed with local weather alerts can help you act quickly when it matters most.

To stay connected and informed, we encourage customers to download their utility company's apps and to ensure their contact information, especially their email and phone number, is up to date. This helps ensure you receive the latest outage notifications and important service updates.

At Plateau, we're proud to keep you connected when it matters most. A few simple steps today can help keep your home safe and prepared all season long. Keep these Plateau numbers handy for your convenience:
